the role of the poet mary kinzie writes is to engage the most profound subjects with the utmost in expressive clarity the role of the critic is to follow the poet word for word into the arena where the creative struggle occurs how this mutual purpose is served ideally and practically is the subject of this bracingly polemical collection of essays a distinguished poet and critic kinzie assesses poetry's situation during the past twenty five years ours she contends is literally a prosaic age not only in the popularity of prose genres but in the resultant compromises with truth and elegance in literature in essays on the rhapsodic fallacy confessionism and the romance of perceptual response kinzie diagnoses some of the trends that diminish the poet's flexibility conversely she also considers individual poets randall jarrell elizabeth bishop howard nemerov seamus heaney and john ashbery who have found ingenious ways of averting the risks of prosaism and preserving the special character of poetry focusing on poet louise bogan and novelist j m coetzee kinzie identifies a crucial and curative overlap between the practices of great prose writing and great poetry in conclusion she suggests a new approach for teaching writers of poetry and fiction forcefully argued these essays will be widely read and debated among critics and poets alike this book demonstrates the ways in which virgil's are poems that heaney lived with long and dreamily especially the descent into the underworld in aeneid vi it shows that in his original english poems as well as his translations from latin heaney conjures and transforms familiar virgilian motifs the rhythm pace and musicality of virgil's hexameters can be heard in heaney's pastoral eclogues and sonnet sequences and virgil's life and times as well as his poetry contribute to the shaping of heaney's prose poetics in dialogue with virgil as well as other classical and modern poets heaney develops his notion of the redress of poetry the counterbalance that poetry can offer against historical tragedy suffering and loss the book explores heaney's intensely productive thirty year dialogue with virgil beginning with his translation of the golden bough in the 1980s and extending through several major volumes including seeing things the midnight verdict electric light district and circle the riverbank field human chain and the posthumously published translation of aeneid book vi how scrapbooking book collecting and other ways of handling print media informed modernist poetry in poetic modernism in the culture of mass print bartholomew brinkman argues that an emerging mass print culture conditioned the production reception and institutionalization of poetic modernism from the latter part of the nineteenth century through the middle of the twentieth century with lasting implications for the poetry and media landscape drawing upon extensive archival research in the united states and britain brinkman demonstrates that a variety of print collecting practices including the anthology the periodical the collage poem volumes of selected and collected poems and the modern poetry archive helped structure key formal and institutional sites of poetic modernism brinkman focuses on the generative role of book collecting practices and the negotiation of print ephemera in scrapbooks he also traces the evolution of the modern poetry archive as a particular case of the mid twentieth century rise of literary archives and identifies parallels between the beginning of mass print culture at the end of the nineteenth century and the growth of digital culture today advocating for a transatlantic modernism that stretches roughly from 1880 to 1960 one that incorporates both popular and canonical poets brinkman successfully extends the geographical historical and vertical dimensions of modernist studies poetic modernism in the culture of mass print will appeal not only to scholars and students of literary modernism modern periodical studies book history print culture media studies history art history and museum studies but also to librarians archivists museum curators and information science professionals
