The section on Africa and the Middle East introduces students to teen life in Cameroon, one of the few places left where adolescents go through formal puberty rituals. In addition, readers learn about adolescent life in Ethiopia, Israel, Morocco, Nigeria, and Sudan. Next, we travel to Asia, China, India, Indonesia, and the Philippines. Here, readers see how economic growth in India and China is creating opportunities for young people. In the Americas, readers are introduced to life in Argentina, Canada, Chile, Mexico, Peru, and the United States. The book concludes with adolescent life in Europe, including the Czech Republic, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Russia, Sweden, and the UK. Intended for courses in adolescent psychology, lifespan development, and/or cultural/cross-cultural psychology, taught in departments of psychology, human development, and family studies, sociology, and education, this book will also appeal to researchers and clinicians who study or work with adolescents.

Noted for its multisystemic ecological perspective, this accessible text and practitioner resource has now been revised and expanded with 60 new material. The book provides a comprehensive view of adolescent development and explores effective ways to support teens who are having difficulties. The authors examine protective and risk factors in the many contexts of adolescents' lives, from individual attributes to family, school, neighborhood, and media influences. Assessment and intervention strategies are illustrated with diverse case examples and emphasize a social justice orientation. Useful pedagogical features include end-of-chapter reflection questions and concise chapter summaries. Hbse courses: counseling, development, treating kids, youths, teens, assessments, treatments, psychotherapy, young adults, textbooks, problems, resources for social workers. This volume focuses on the complex relation between offending and the transition from school to the workplace. How employment and education are related to breaking the law and getting in contact with the criminal justice system. The contributors report results from several large-scale and sophisticated studies conducted in the Netherlands that gathered rich data on employment, education, and criminal behaviour. Each of the studies focuses on a particular period during the life course and particular risk categories. Taken together, they contribute to our understanding of how getting out of school, getting into a job, and doing illegal things are intertwined over the life course and how these relations differ with age and gender. The background of this volume is our interest in the often-studied relation between offending and employment, or more generally between offending and the transition from school to work, including dropping out, part-time work, and joblessness. The available literature casts little doubt that employment and education are indeed related to less crime and offending. However, this relation is much more complex than it appears at first hand. The volume is primarily aimed at researchers and students in the fields of criminology, sociology, and economics. However, it may also be of use for non-academic professionals, in particular policy makers and practitioners in the field of criminal justice, probation, rehabilitation, and youth schools.

This text identifies factors that influence children and adolescents and indicates how professionals can help young people as clients in a variety of settings. The strengths of the text include a pragmatic focus on both children and adolescents, a broad conception of practice, an emphasis on assessment, the use of historical, organizational, and developmental perspectives, and a major social problems focus. The text is divided into three parts to identify the context of social work with children and adolescents, examine the helping process, and discuss applications of that process.
